Dain Court plans to go back to the Planning Commission with significant revisions

The Planning Commission's decision to deny the developer hoping to build on Dain Court a Plan Development permit was upheld "without prejudice" by the City Council Monday night.

The developer, Dworkin & Ogden, had appealed the Planning Commission's decision asking for more time to hear from residents in the area and perhaps make adjustments to their plans based on these concerns. As a result, changes in the plans were so substantial the Council decided to refer the matter back to the Planning Commission, as the new plan features significant improvements and now has a good chance of being approved by the Planning Commission.

The developers have considered realigning the street, reducing the density of houses by removing two of the lots and are also considering widening the street.

Residents within a 300 foot radius will be notified of the Planning Commission meeting so they can voice their concerns to the commission, and those outside that radius can get on the mailing list by contacting the Planning Department.

Approval of a new City logo and seal were also on the agenda. The bright new logo and seal feature the City slogan "Best Climate on Earth," the Lemon and the trolley depot.

Councilwoman Karen O'Rourke moved for approval of the logo and approval in concept of the seal, with the exception of color.

The Council also discussed the possibility of a permanent hazardous waste collection site, finally deciding to establish a one-day hazardous waste collection activity on September 8 at the EDCO yard.

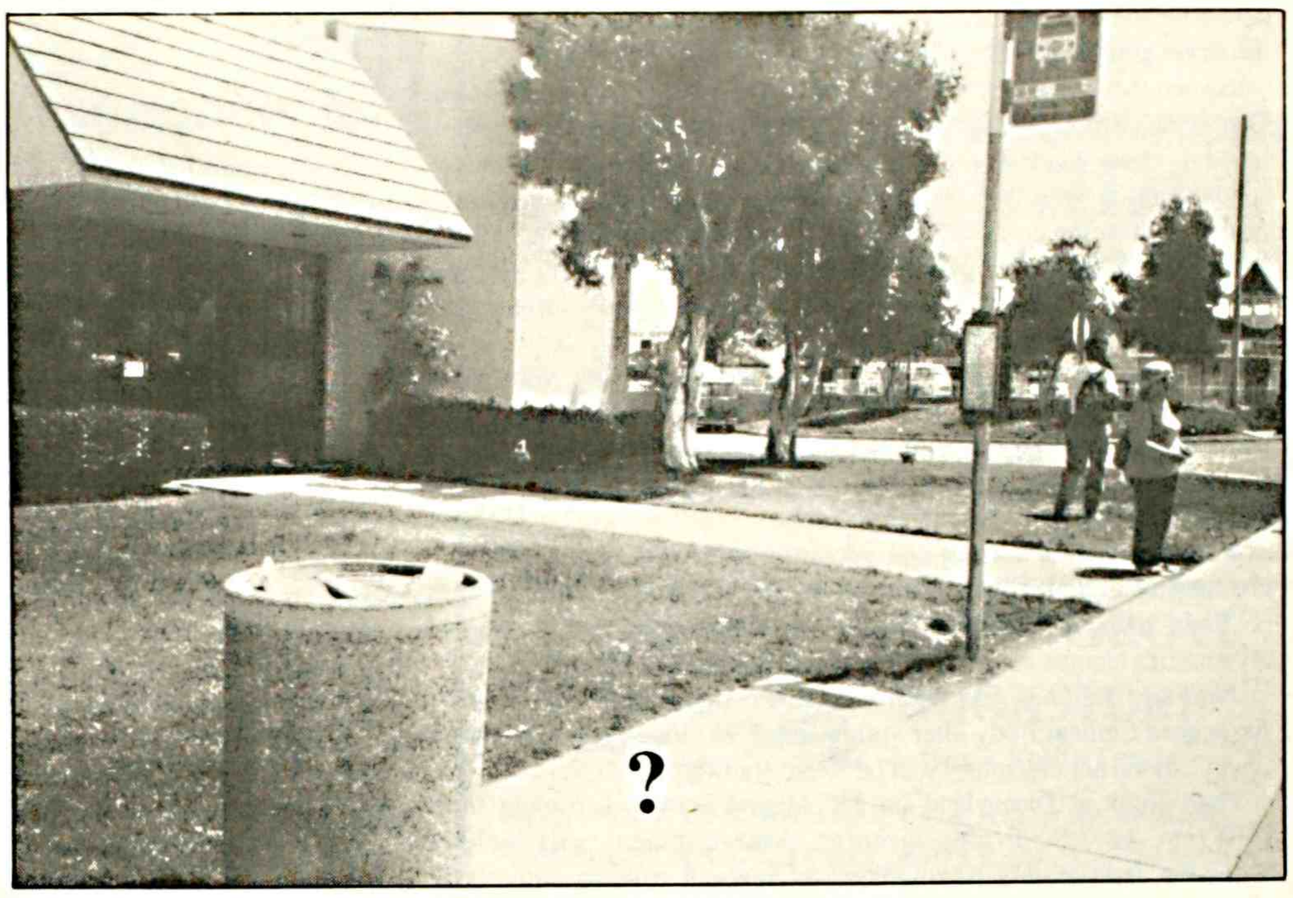
City Manager Jack Shelver said he had investigated the site established by the City of Coronado and checked into the possible pitfalls of establishing a similar facility in Lemon Grove, which led him to the conclusion that a permanent site in Lemon Grove would be premature. The one-day clean-up will serve both Lemon Grove and La Mesa.

A letter from a concerned citizen, Barbara Sabin, was addressed by the Council as well. Sabin wrote asking the City to consider planting trees along the freeway and trolley line. Shelver suggested the best way to make these type of improvements would be through CalTrans program of adopting a highway.

"You have to adopt a minimum of two miles," said Shelver. Many cities and organizations are participating in this program which also includes litter pick-up, added Shelver.

Councilman Brain Cochran suggested that community groups need to be aware of this program and that Staff look into the feasibility of adopting a highway as a community undertaking.

Where have all the benches gone?



Many a weary bus rider has been dismayed to discover that an essential element of an average Lemon Grove bus stop is missing–the bench.

As part of the City's redevelopment efforts to make downtown Lemon Grove more attractive, the Redevelopment Agency decided to have all benches with advertising on them removed and to replace them with new benches. The plan is to have downtown benches made of concrete with no advertising and metal benches with no advertising in outlying areas.

"We contacted the advertisers and asked them to remove the benches within 90 days, expecting it to take longer," said City Manager Jack Shelver, "well, they removed them within 30 days and the benches we ordered haven't arrived yet." He said he expects the benches to arrive any day adding "We spent about $5,000 on them." He also said the City is planning to place litter cans near the downtown bus stops.

Lee White selling car dealership

Lee White Toyota may soon be operating under a new owner. Tom Donovan, who formerly owned a car dealership in Pasadena and is a resident of Huntington Beach, is in the process of purchasing the Lemon Grove dealership.

Donovan and City Manager Jack Shelver said the plans made earlier to make certain improvements at the Federal Boulevard site are still expected to go forward, as these were required by the Toyota company.

"The service center will be moved across the street," said Donovan "and I'd like to see another franchise move into the dealer center."

Donovan said he expects the sale to be final in about 60 days and he will definitely be changing the name of the dealership, but he has not decided on a name as of yet. It's a good bet the word "lemon" will not be part of it!

Lemon Grove teacher among honorees

The Corporation for Excellence in Public Education (EXCEL), has selected 26 outstanding teachers and counselors from school districts throughout the county to receive its sixth annual Award for Excellence. Parents, students, teachers, and administrators submitted more than five hundred nominations for the award.

The 26 winners were honored at a reception May 17th. Each Award for Excellence recipient received $300 and an EXCEL certificate.

"We have so many remarkable teachers in San Diego County that it was very difficult selecting just 26 for this award," said Rod Tompkins, co-chairperson of EXCEL.

Among those honored were: Kay Adams, Grossmont High - English; Leslie Hays, Helix High -Chemistry, Biology, Oceanography; and Barry Spencer, Vista La Mesa Elementary-Kindergarten teacher, Lemon Grove School District.

Obituary

Charles Walter Chance, 47

Charles Walter Chance, 47, resident of Lemon Grove died Tuesday morning from injuries sustained when his rock truck tumbled down an embankment at South Coast Asphalt Products Quarry, 431 S. Twin Oaks Valley Road.

Charles (Chuck), was born in San Diego in 1942 and has resided in Lemon Grove since 1952. He was a member of the Class of 1960 at Mt. Miguel High School in Spring Valley where he was very active in baseball and football. He worked for NASSCO Shipbuilders for 22 years as an NC Burner and foreman. He was a member of the Ironworkers Union Local #627. He was currently employed by Jan Reynolds Equipment and was a member of the Teamsters Union Local #36.

Chuck was a founding member of the Hookers Bass Club and was Club Champion for many successive years. An avid and expert fisherman, he could be found most weekends at the local lakes and ocean with his son and many fishing buddies, sharing his wit, humor and expertise.

Chuck is survived by his wife of 23 years, Donnie, daughter Debbie Perez of Kearney Mesa, sons Scott, Larry, and Eric of Lemon Grove, daughter Shannon of Lakeside, grandchildren Jacki, Nickey, and Timmy, parents Steve C. and Della A. Chance, brother Frank McCoy of Thompson Falls, Montana, sisters Daisy Fiddler and Rita Baumann both of Lemon Grove, seven nieces, five nephews, two grandnieces, four grandnephews, plus numerous loving family members, good friends and fishing buddies.

Funeral services will be held on Monday, May 21 at 10:00 a.m. at St. John of the Cross Catholic Church in Lemon Grove. His cremated remains will be taken to sea and placed among the marine life he dearly loved.

In lieu of flowers, donations will be accepted for an annual Bass Tournament in his memory and honor, by the Hookers Bass Club. Donations may be sent to the "Chuck Chance Memorial Bass Tournament Fund" in care of Scott Chance, 1625 Watwood Road, Lemon Grove, Ca 92045. Donations are also being accepted for a proposed bronze plaque to be placed at the accident site. They may be sent to the above address as well.

He will be greatly missed.

Chuck Chance

A Trick or Treat Wedding

"Hey! Pop let's give the newly-weds a shivaree." For the young folks in my audience the word "shivaree" doesn't mean a French toaster.

It does come from a French word meaning--a noisy celebration, or mock serenade to a newly married couple on their wedding night. The banging of kettles, the blowing of horns, and anything to irritate the bride and groom to keep them up all that first and most anticipated night.

The tying of old shoes, tin cans, and etc. by pranksters and friends of the families to drag behind the newlywed's Model A Ford was standard procedure.

The noise created by the dragging debris was easy to follow for the tricksters so they would know where the anxious couple would spend their "Honeymoon Night."

As soon as nightfall and all the shades were drawn, a crowd of the "Rowdies" were gathered around this "House of Impassionate Love." At a signal from the leader who had calculated the precise moment, all hell broke loose.

Horns were blown, kettles were banged, buzz saw blades were clanged, shotguns were fired anything that would make the loudest, most outrageous noises to discourage love-making were made loud and clear.

In a very short time the young, still innocent groom would come steaming to the front door, "What the devil do you all want?"

A chorus of requests were shouted out, "Unless we get cider, popcorn, candy, home brew, something good to eat, or money we will be here until dawn."

Those shivaree parties were very similar to the old time Halloween "Tricks or Treats." If the demands were not met, the rowdies would turn over rain barrels, out houses, horse buggies, or even cars.

Usually the newlyweds would cough up the necessary money or treats and avoid the unpredictable and on-going consequences.

I have even heard of the desperadoes kidnapping the bride or groom and keeping them separated for a long enough time to have their demands met.

Under those adverse "Wedding Night" conditions I can see why a couple would elope or at least sneak away to the Justice of the Peace to take their vows.

The young men of yesteryear were full of mischief but their means of demonstrating it wasn't quite as violent as today. "Tricks or Treats" for shivaree made Halloween and marriage both scary events.

Sports Commentary

The Great Strawberry Patch Raid

The New York Mets were in town for a weekend series and the pre-game Sunday brunch talk centered, as usual, on players and baseball happenings.

Mets outfielder Darryl Strawberry drew comment relating to his slow start and somehow attention was diverted to the superb fresh strawberries highlighting the media's Sunday brunch.

Before conversation could return to Strawberry, the player, Mil Chipp stopped us by saying, "Everytime I eat strawberries I think of the time I had to pancake into a ripe strawberry field."

That began a story that had to be told. And the tale was worth the time it took to tell.

Mil Chipp squeezed four lifetimes in his 3-score-plus-10 or so years. Fresh out of college he joined the U.S. Army Air Corps and flew 34 B-17 missions in deadly combat over Europe.

He turned to newspapering after WW II, eventually settling in La Mesa and rose from reporter to executive duties with the Copley Press.

He still fulfills a lifelong passion by covering, for more than 40 years, the San Diego baseball beat for UPI and if that weren't enough, he is also curator of Padre facts and figures.

But we're getting away from the strawberries. It happened on May 17, 1943. Chipp flew his B-17, named the "Berlin Sleeper," in group strength attack against the submarine pens at Lorient, a heavily defended target on the west coast of France.

"We had fighters going in and coming out and heavy flak over the target," Chipp recalled. "We took a close-in hit from the flak and lost our hydraulic system. Power to our machine gun turrets was gone and we had no landing gear."

There was no way to repair the damage and Chipp and his crew prepared for a wheels-up landing in the farm land near their base at Grafton-Underwood, (near Oxford) in southern England.

They came in "hot," with no flaps and no gear and all Chipp could do to slow down was to reduce power settings. He ordered his co-pilot to cut all switches just before touchdown.

"We came down in a fresh strawberry field and tore of path nearly a mile long. The propellers were tearing up strawberries and throwing them into the sky. The bombardier's Plexiglass nose crumpled and acted like a scoop filling the aircraft with tons of strawberries. It was a "soft" landing and we were unhurt, but we were up to our eyebrows in strawberries."

It took hardly any time at all for rescue crews to reach the "Berlin Sleeper." They were underway from Grafton-Underwood, only 2-miles away, even before the touchdown.

"The Rescue Chief crawled up on our wing, took one look inside and called for all available medical personnel," laughed Chipp. "He said, 'All you Medicos get up here on the double. It looks like they're all dead. There's blood everywhere.' He couldn't believe it when we started laughing. Nobody was hurt."

"Berlin Sleeper" needed the battle damage repaired, new propellers and a paint job inside and out, but she was back in action by August. Chipp flew a lifetime of missions in her.

The Padres are in New York this weekend, The games will be telecast. Mil will be watching. Strawberry will be playing, of course. And Chipp will likely laugh again at a 47 year old memory.

VFW dedication

VFW Post 2082 will hold a Memorial Day dedication on May 28, 1990 at 2 p.m.

The Post is dedicating a plaque to "All those who served in the fighting forces of our great nation," that will be mounted on the Post building.

Fire safety guidelines offered, as fire season arrives

Help the fire department to help your home survive the threat of brush fires. Homes that are least often threatened by brush and grass fires are most often the homes that are maintained to the following guidelines:

Remove all dry, combustible vegetation within 30 feet of the home or adjoining structures.

Single trees, shrubs and ground covers are fine if watered and will not transmit fire to your home or others.

Remove all growth at least 10 feet from chimney and stove outlets.

Keep all trees and growth near your home free of dead matter and well watered.

Keep your roof free of combustible leaves and needles.

Place 1/2" metal screen or spark arrestor over chimney outlets.

Make sure your address numbers to your home are visible from the street.

The Lemon Grove Fire Department is asking for your support to assist in preventing unnecessary property loss by following these guidelines.

Lets all help to make this a safe fire season.

Joe Freed on the Movies

This week's movie: Bird on a Wire

It seems to me that Mel Gibson could do just about anything he wants right now. Riding on the success of "Lethal Weapon" and its sequel, he has proven that he's blockbuster material. So its only logical that Mel would use his strong position to get only the best roles, right? Not necessarily. Don't get me wrong, "Bird on a Wire" is an enjoyable movie, its just that it seems like somebody said "OK lets make another 'Lethal Weapon,' but we'll change the plot a little and make one of the guys a girl." Voila! A whole new movie that we just saw last summer.

Mel plays an ex-con, under the Federal government's witness protection program, who's being pursued by the two crooks he testified against, as well as a corrupt FBI agent. Goldie Hawn is an old girlfriend he bumps into just as the bad guys catch up with him. She wants to help him of course, even though she thought he was dead and hasn't seen him for 15 years after he left her at the altar, and from then on they get shot at a lot, survive through a bunch of chase scenes and spend a great deal of time screaming at each other. We also get to see both of their rear ends. Boy, we're talking Academy Award material here.

Director John Badham gets and A+ for action and thrills, but screenwriters David Seltzer, Louis Venosta and Eric Lerner get and F- for originality. It took three guys to come up with this? My seven-year-old nephew could do better.

And I still can't get over Mel...He started his career out so well, with Peter Weir's "Gallipoli," and later "The Bounty" with Anthony Hopkins. Even "Lethal Weapon" was good. I just wish he'd learn when it's time to move on to better things.

Universal Pictures released the film early in the season so that it could make a few million before the rest of the summer giants arrive, ("Back to the Future III" starts today), and that was a smart move. I have a feeling that as soon as it faces any real box office competition, "Bird on a Wire" is going to get fried.

Enter The Lemon Grove Review's Coloring Contest And You May

for ages 5 - 11

The Lemon Grove Review
P.O. Box 127
Lemon Grove, CA 92045

The winners will be chosen by our judges and consideration will be given to the age of the artist. The Judges' decisions will be final. Children, ages 5 to 11 only, may enter one time each week. Deadline for week one is June 3, 1990. Deadline for week two is June 10, 1990. First prize is 10 tickets to Magic Mountain. Second and third prizes of four tickets each will also be awarded. Entries received by June 3rd will be judged in contest number one only, and only entries received between June 4th and June 10th will be judged for contest number two. So be sure to enter each contest! The 1st, 2nd and 3rd place prizes will be awarded for each contest! Tickets are good for children or adults. Winners will be notified and announced in the following issue of the Lemon Grove Review. You must live in East County.
